? Not sure if it's a bug or not I can't do a clean install cause I want to upgrade from 17.10 i hate when that happens i need to learn how to live with my ircd network im using docker i dont have the time to learn how to live with nix right now u sure its docker cause it doesnt look like a vm network issue I don't know I'm confused what ubuntu version are you on kvm 17.10 have you googled about the problem even did a search of your motherboard about the beep no, but I can try can do that too I have had issues with this motherboard for a while now I'd like to keep using the old laptop if I can. well i cant help you with any of that The bios has an error that it has to update im not really sure if that will help but good luck i can get a new computer if i want but i got biz too much work right now maybe if you contact them about it dont know anything about that beep it looks like a hardware or bios issue I will try a few things good luck Thanks! Hi, I'm having problems with Ubuntu 17.10 and my xorg. I get a segmentation fault, a message from the Intel driver about the gfxinfo error, and a message from my Radeon driver about no amd_iommu Why do I have two drivers for my graphics? Is there a reason why the Ubuntu Server Edition installer would see my installation as 82157476af
